

This week I have been working on a high fidelity prototype for the web application as well as finalising the features that will be included. The future plans section in the interim report will also be filled

Next week the plan is to finish the interim report and begin programming the simple version of the website to be used for the interim presentation